This 8-hour training course explores the legal, ethical, and practical aspects of the Duty to Intervene for law enforcement officers. It covers Illinois statutes, federal court rulings, and real-life studies where officers failed to intervene. Through lecture, discussion, video analysis, and scenario-based training, participants will learn intervention strategies, review legal precedents, and practice applying these skills in high-pressure situations.

COURSE OBJECTIVES:

- 2) Analyze relevant federal court rulings (Graham v. Conner, Tennessee v. Garner) that impact officers' responsibilities in use-of-force situations
- 3) Identify and explain barriers that may prevent officers from intervening, such as peer pressure, fear of retaliation, or mental health stressors
- 4) Demonstrate the ability to assess and intervene in scenarios involving excessive force or misconduct
- 5) Recognize the importance of reporting misconduct as required by 50 ILCS 705
- 6) Apply intervention strategies in scenario-based exercises, demonstrating the ability to de-escalate situations and intervene appropriately
- 7) Evaluate real-life case studies where officers failed to intervene and understand the legal, professional, and ethical consequences of those failures
